

new DAZAT 1150 builds

The first successful racing season for 1150 prototype Drama Queen has led to more orders; we are building one complete boat and one kit. The complete boat has had a new coachroof designed by the illustrious Nic Bailey, which will improve standing headroom in the bridgedeck - the only slightly negative thing Multihull Review could find to say about her. For a full description of all the many features of the 1150, and the different build options, visit the Designs page and have a look at the pdf.

Anticlockwise from left: laminating the first hull for the sailaway; hull joining; and release; the start of the first hull for the kit boat

